A business visitor

Molly Varangkouh, President of Hy-Capacity, a business out of Humboldt that sells re-manufacturer and new agricultural parts, visited the Iowa Central Community College Career Academy. Varangkouh spoke to the students about how to complete a job application, preparation for a job interview as well as what the first day on the job looks like. She talked about the many forms that a new employee has to complete, learning about the safety rules and working with your supervisor on the tasks for the job. Varangkouh also talked about the types of careers Hy-Capacity offers. It is so important for students to hear from business and industry about what they are looking for in employees and the careers that are available in our area. Photo submitted
